

Terms & Conditions

Confidentiality & Data security

AEIRC is devoted to maintain the trust & esteem with respect to customer's privacy. The information including contact details, email address, mailing address, phone number, log in & account details, communication, queries, comments, contribution etc. will be secured through the use of appropriate technical and organizational measures.

Authorities:

In rare instances, we may disclose personal information if any misconduct or any sort of allegation is held that requires legal processing and investigations.

Legal use of the website

When using the website the material should not be used without prior consent. You must not violate personal or others rights. The content and resources present on any of linked pages of the website may be removed according to the updates. Therefore, we hold no responsibility for your reliance on the previous content.

Data use

To avoid confusions, AEIRC is the licensee of all academic and intellectual property present on the website. All such rights are reserved. And in certain cases, we may use your information in order to handle any sort of legal disputes, for investigations or to enforce the terms of use of the service.

Data retention

The data once entered into the website will be retained for as long as necessary for essential legal obligations, maintaining records, security, detecting and preventing fraud, and enforcing our agreements.

Viruses

Although the developing team make all reasonable attempts to exclude viruses from the Website. But the user must take all appropriate precautions before downloading any content from the Website.

Changes

We may update this document from time to time. Changes made will be displayed as revised version with date. However, material changes regarding services or publication etc., we will provide notice through the Service or by other means.

Site maintenance

We may need to suspend access to all or a part of any website to fix general defects and errors, update installations, general diagnosis, testing & maintenance.

Registrations

If you are required to register, the authenticity of the information provided is your responsibility. We only rely on the registration details provided to us by you.

Contact us / Lodge a complaint

To exercise your rights, or if you have questions about our privacy practices or need further assistance with understanding specific service, please contact us at admin@aeirc-edu.com

Service-specific details

The details regarding the services section will be revised frequently, all details and revisions will be updated on the specific website pages. Please read the service-specific details below for additional information about certain AEIRC services.

- AEIRC publishing's
- R & D Solutions
- Academics

